Dear Stan,

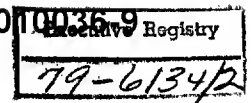

For reasons unknown - but which your organization might perhaps investigate - your letter of 20 December reached me only on 10 January. I hasten to respond and to say, most regretfully, that I shall not (and cannot) be free on 15 February to attend your meeting as I should otherwise have been most pleased to do. The meeting sounds both important and useful.

Please accept, with my regrets, every best wish for the new year.

Yours sincerely,

Dear Admiral Turner:

Thank you for your thoughtfulness in inviting me to come to the Agency for a day in February. Unfortunately, that is a day in which I will be off in Florida delivering yet another speech of questionable value both to the giver and the receiver!

I watch with interest your efforts at the CIA, interest heightened by recognizing how much you accomplished during your stay at the Naval War College.

Good luck.

Sincerely,

Frank Newman
